Champagne

| 5 | Bollinger La Cote aux Enfants, Coteaux Champenoise | 2002 | £90 |
|---|--|------|-----|
- Not your usual champagne, this is a 100% Pinot Noir still wine from Champagne. La Cote aux Enfants is a one of Bollinger's Grand Cru Vineyards in Ay. The grape bunches are harvested by hand at their optimal ripeness, which involves a number of visits to the vineyard. It is an impression of the still wines that made Champagne famous even before the creation of sparkling wine was possible.*

HALF BOTTLES

We believe you should taste as many different wines as possible and why not enjoy a white and a red with your meal? But sometimes the prospect of two bottles is a bit daunting or one of you loves red but the other is in the mood for white. The solution is here. Our half bottle selection is as carefully put together as the "full" bottle list. We aim to create an interesting and diverse listing and will continue to expand this section.

Half bottles - maturity & quality

There is a perception that wine in half bottle doesn't mature well or that the quality is inferior to regular bottles. There is some truth in this but – as most things connected to wine – it is not that simple. The quality is certainly equal when bottled, but the wine is slightly more prone to be damaged by poor storage. It is also true that half bottles tend to mature faster than in larger formats. The good side is that certain wines are earlier accessible than their bigger brothers; the 2006 Bordeaux above are already well drinking while the full bottles can do with a few more months. It is also more important to do regular tasting of half bottles to keep track of the development. Because of we take even more care in choosing the wines for our half bottle selection. We source all our half bottles from our most trusted suppliers who in turn buy direct from the producers cellar, we taste before we buy and once in our cellar we regularly re-taste to check their development. With a bit of care and dedication when buying and storing half bottles, there is no reason why they shouldn't be enjoyed as much as any other format.

All wines are 375ml.

SHERRY, PORT & DESSERT WINE

Three of the truly great kind of wines in the world yet they all struggle to overcome consumers preconception of them. While Port has a loyal following it can't be denied that it is widely regarded as a "season" drink to go with Christmas pudding or to be served at special occasions usually involving the queen or a regimental dinner. But there's more to it than just this and a bottle of Vintage port is a delight that everyone should savour at least once in a while.
